Governor to Address Transitional Jobs Task Force at its First Meeting FRIDAY

Governor Jim Doyle will address the Transitional Jobs Task Force at its first meeting in Madison tomorrow, Friday, March 14. The Governor announced the Transitional Jobs program in his biennial state budget to build upon Wisconsin's W-2 program and to increase employment and earnings opportunities for low-income families.

The Task Force consists of 15 members, including legislators from both houses and both major political parties, business, labor and external stakeholder groups such as community organizations, W-2 agencies and Workforce Development Boards. Additionally, the Task Force includes three non-voting research and program experts to serve as technical advisors.

The Governor will address the Task Force at 10:15 a.m. in the Governor's Conference Room, 115 East of the State Capitol, Madison.
